CREDENTIALS: Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be obtained by contacting Rick Brewer in the Sports Information Office. Brewer's mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Requests are screened with care to insure a working pressbox. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

FILING COPY: There are no Western Union facilities in the Carmichael Auditorium pressbox. The Athletic Department does furnish a number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. The Sports Information Office also has one telecopier which is available on a first-come, first-serve basis after each game. It is strongly suggested, however, that whenever possible writers bring their own telecopiers. This will allow all copy to be moved more quickly and will alleviate any deadline problems.

PRESSBOX SERVICES: Programs and statistics will be provided before each game. A play-by-play will be distributed at the end of each half. Complete halftime and final boxscores will be provided. Coaches' quotes will also be available.

Sandwiches and soft drinks are available in the pressbox.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews can be arranged by contacting the Sports Information Office. Generally, these interviews will be set up before or after practice in Carmichael Auditorium.

RADIO NETWORK AND TV SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network is one of the largest and best basketball radio networks in the nation. The network is operated by Village Companies of Chapel Hill with Jim Heavner as the producer. Woody Durham will handle the play-by-play with Heavner adding color commentary.

The Carolina Basketball Show will be televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. Durham serves as emcee for this program which features Coach Dean Smith and game highlights.

1982-83 OUTLOOK

Despite the return of three starters from last year's NCAA championship team, the North Carolina Tar Heels will be hard pressed to equal their accomplishments of last season.

Carolina posted a 32-2 record a year ago, opened and finished the season as the nation's top-ranked team and won the national championship with a 63-62 victory over Georgetown in the NCAA finals.

All-America center Sam Perkins, forward Matt Doherty and guard Michael Jordan return from last year's starting five. However, the two missing starters—guard Jimmy Black and All-America forward James Worthy—will be extremely difficult to replace.

Black gave the Tar Heels great leadership and sensational play from his point guard position. He handed out 213 assists, averaged 7.6 points per game, played great defense and ran the Carolina offenses and defenses. During his career, he played in more winning games than any player in Atlantic Coast Conference history. He was selected in the third round of the NBA draft last summer.

Worthy, who passed up his senior year to turn professional, had a great all-around junior season. A consensus All-America, Worthy was brilliant down the stretch as Carolina drove to the national title. He was the most valuable player in the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four. His inside scoring, passing, rebounding and defense will be sorely missed. Worthy was the first player chosen in the NBA draft.

Also gone from last year's team are Chris Brust and Jeb Barlow, the top front-court reserves.

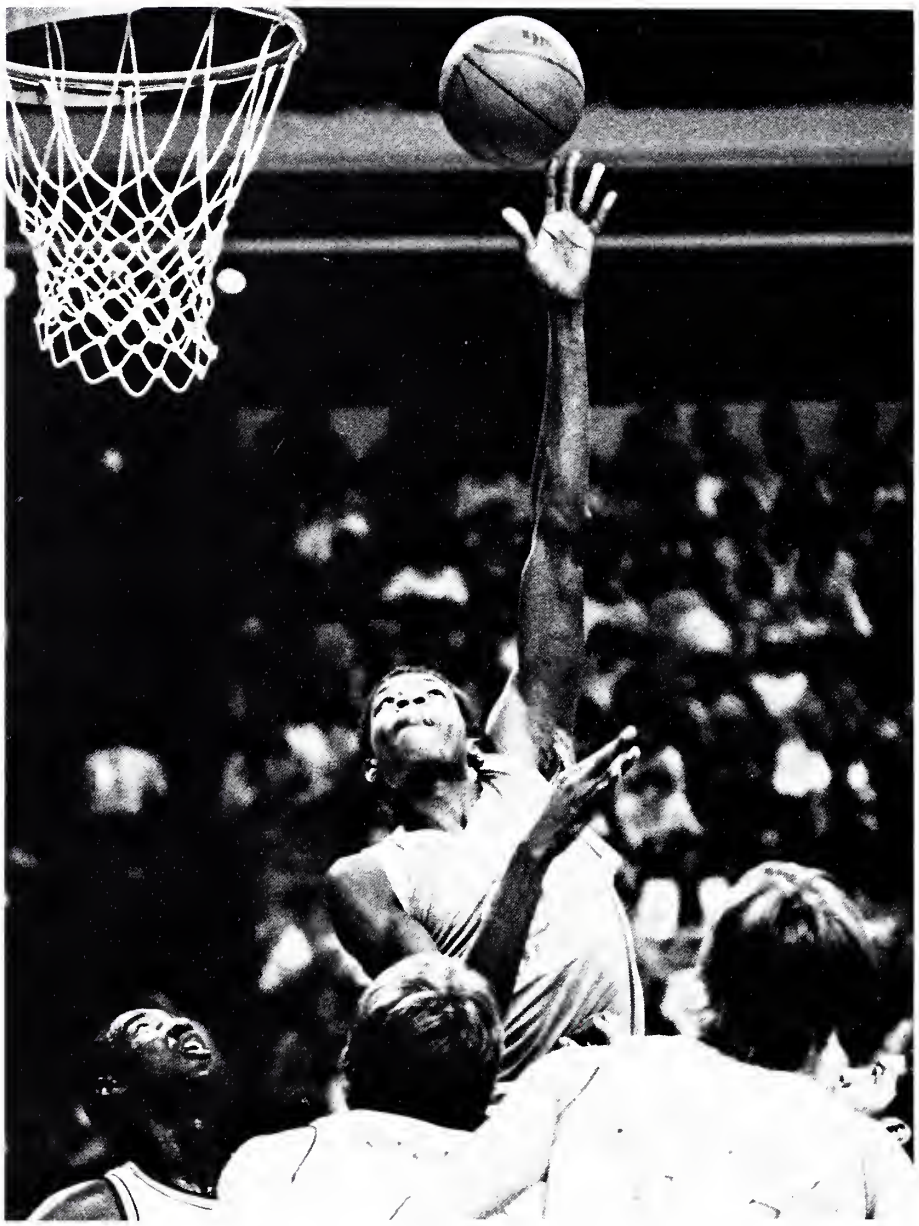
Still, Carolina has the potential to once again be a major force in the college game.

"We should be a very good basketball team," says Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. "However, our schedule poses a tremendous challenge. We could easily lose 10 or 12 games and still be an outstanding team."

The Tar Heels will play at least 20 games against teams which appeared in post-season tournaments last year. Nine of the first 11 games will be played away from home. In addition, Carolina's 14 ACC games will be played under rules different from the rest of the schedule. The league will use a 30-second clock and a 19-foot three-point field goal in conference play this year.

Regardless of the competition or rules, however, Carolina figures to get fine play from Perkins, Doherty and Jordan. All played very well last year.

Perkins, a 6-9, 234-pound junior from Latham, N.Y., was a first-team All-America on the squad chosen by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and a consensus second-team choice. He averaged 14.3 points per game, led the Tar Heels in rebounding with a 7.8 average and played very well on defense. He displayed the versatility to defend a 7-4 player like Ralph Sampson one night and a 6-5 guard such as Brook Steppe the next.



"We expect Sam to be more of a shot blocker for us this year, in addition to continuing his outstanding offensive play," says Smith. "We won't have James around to help on the boards, so Sam must also continue to improve his rebounding."

Doherty, a 6-8, 215-pound junior from East Meadow, N.Y., averaged 9.3 points and 3.0 rebounds per game last year. However, those statistics don't begin to tell what he really contributed. Doherty is also an excellent passer and ballhandler and a solid defensive player. In their first two years at Carolina, Doherty and Perkins have helped the Tar Heels compile a 61-10 record.

"Every team needs an all-around player like Doherty," says Smith. "He helps us in so many ways because of his versatility. With Worthy gone, we will be looking to him for better rebounding during the upcoming year."

Jordan won ACC Rookie of the Year honors last season. The 6-6, 196-pound sophomore from Wilmington, N.C. was Carolina's third-leading scorer (13.5) and rebounder (4.4) a year ago. A starter from the first game of the season, Jordan made good improvement throughout the year. It was his jump shot with 17 seconds left which proved to be the winning points in the NCAA Finals.

"I thought Michael had an outstanding freshman year," says Smith. "But he was inconsistent at times. He did play a great all-around game against Georgetown in the national finals and that should help his confidence going into the new season. We expect him to continue to improve defensively as he did last year."

In addition to these three, Carolina also returns two other players who saw considerable action last year—guards Jim Braddock and Buzz Peterson. Braddock, a 6-2 senior from Chattanooga, Tenn., did a fine job of subbing for Black at point guard. Peterson, a 6-4 sophomore from Asheville, N.C., came back from an early-season ankle injury to play at both backcourt positions late in the year.

These two players are expected to battle with Lynwood Robinson, a 6-1 sophomore from Mt. Olive, N.C., and Steve Hale, a 6-3 freshman from Jenks, Okla., for Black's old spot in the backcourt.

Smith is considering three possibilities for filling Worthy's power forward position.

One option would involve moving Perkins to that spot. That would leave his center job to John Brownlee, a 6-10 sophomore from Ft. Worth, Tex.; Timo Makkonen, a 6-11½ junior from Lahti, Finland; or Warren Martin, a 6-11 sophomore from Axton, Va.

Smith could choose to go with a smaller lineup and move Doherty to big forward. Jordan would then start at big guard with Cecil Exum, a 6-6 junior from Dudley, N.C., at small forward or Jordan could move to small forward with the big guard job going to Peterson or Curtis Hunter, a 6-4 freshman from Durham, N.C.

The final possibility is 6-11 freshman Brad Daugherty of Black Mountain, N.C. winning the big forward spot.

With all these options, Carolina's overall size should be similar to what it was last year. But, the Tar Heels may not be as quick. Black and Worthy were two of the team's quickest players, if not the two quickest.

A major concern for Smith is defense.

"We will miss Black and Worthy in all areas of play, but especially on defense," he says. "They were our two best defensive players last year. Thus, it will be a real challenge to be as good defensively as we were last season. That will be one of our biggest goals."

Carolina should again be a good offensive team. The Tar Heels have shot at least 52 percent from the field for an incredible 12 consecutive years. But, the Tar Heels may not get as many good shots as they did last season.

"Worthy was such a great player that he drew defenses to him," points out Smith. "Then his excellent passing ability allowed him to get the ball to our open people. We will have to work harder for good shots without him and Black."

While the Tar Heels may not get as many good shots, they certainly will get more shots in ACC games. The new rules insure that.

"The biggest problem facing ACC coaches will be how much to change their style of play for the sake of the new rules," says Smith, "since NCAA competition and other games will be played under the rules we had last season."

Smith likes the new rules. In fact, he has favored a 30-second clock and a short three-point field goal for several years.

"Three years ago Bill Guthridge (Carolina assistant coach) came up with the idea of a 15 to 17-foot three point field goal to do away with the zone defenses which would become dominant with a shot clock. I suggested 18 feet two years ago and, of course, we voted for 19 last spring.

"Because a 19-foot shot is a good one, you will see defenses spread out to cover outside shooters. That will open the game up more and should give us a most exciting season in the conference."

Carolina will be trying to uphold an amazing basketball tradition during the 1982-83 season. The Tar Heels have finished first in the ACC regular-season race 10 times in the last 16 years and second on the other six occasions. In those 16 years Carolina has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament championship 12 times. In addition, Smith's teams have appeared in a national post-season tournament each of those 16 years, reaching the Final Four seven times in this stretch.

Smith is expecting the ACC to be even tougher this year than it was last season when six teams competed in post-season play.

"I think this is going to be an 'up' year for the conference," says Smith. "Really only two teams, Carolina and Wake Forest, suffered severe personnel losses."

Still, Smith feels his team will be in the race for the ACC title and a spot in the NCAA Tournament.

"However, we must avoid serious injury to key people as we did last year." he says "Even without injury, it would be tough to get back to the Final Four. Since the NCAA lowered its academic requirements, allowing more good players in Division I, it has been extremely difficult for the defending national champion to return to the Final Four. But, that will again be our long-range goal."

What Smith Says About:

THE '82-83 SEASON

"This should be a challenging year from the standpoint that we are the defending national champions, but yet we don't have the same people who won that title. I think we can have an excellent basketball team. I expect us to be a good defensive team once again. We will look to run at every opportunity as we have in the past. We led the ACC in scoring in league games last year and we hope to do that again. It certainly should be an interesting year considering the strength of our non-conference schedule and the rules experiment in the ACC."

SAM PERKINS

"I expect Sam to have his finest year yet in a brilliant career at Carolina. He's done a great job the past two years in all phases of play and we're simply asking him to do nothing more but improve his execution. Sam played very well in the NCAA Tournament last year. I thought he played a fine, all-around game against Georgetown in the national finals, but he didn't receive a lot of attention for that. Of course, we wouldn't have been in the finals if it had not been for his outstanding game against Houston in the semi-finals.

"Sam has worked hard in the weight room as evidenced by his increased weight and physical maturity. Not many players make All-America as a sophomore like Sam did. And those who do, don't often work to improve themselves as Sam has."

CONCERNS FOR '82-83

"A major concern for me each year is team chemistry. That's something we had last year. But, that's also something that's difficult to control. It usually just develops. We'll definitely need it over the course of our season.

"Recent history shows that after a team wins the national championship, it generally does not have a great year the following season even if it only loses one or two players. We are hoping our players realize this is a different team from last year with new goals. Of course, no team has won back-to-back national championships since UCLA in 1972 and '73. No one has even made back-to-back trips to the Final Four in the last seven seasons except North Carolina. That's an indication of the great balance in college basketball.

"Another concern is our difficult schedule. I hope we don't lose confidence playing so many tough opponents.

"Other than a big shot-blocker and rebounder in the middle, I've always thought the most important player on a team is the quarterback. That's why Jimmy Black's contributions the last two years have meant so much to our team. Jim Braddock, Buzz Peterson, Lynwood Robinson or Steve Hale must really come along to replace him.

"I'm also concerned about our rebounding. It's going to take a lot of determination, aggressiveness and good technique to be a strong rebounding team as we were last year."

MATT DOHERTY

"In our summer film study we realized even more how important Matt was to our basketball team in 1982. We anticipate his continued improvement again this year. Matt will be asked to serve many roles on our 1983 team. Depending on the progress of our big people, we may even have to play him at power forward. He's extremely team-oriented and is happy to help in any way he can, whether it's setting a screen, boxing out so someone else can get a rebound, or just making the easy pass. I expect great things from him this year."

THE ACC RACE

"Carolina and Wake Forest were hit hardest by the loss of starters from last year, but I expect both to be contenders again. With all the other teams expecting improvement, we should have greater balance than last year. Of course, this has been a well-balanced league throughout the '70's and early '80's. All of the athletic programs in the ACC have committed themselves to have strong basketball teams. That's been proven in recent years."

MICHAEL JORDAN

"We expect Michael to be an improved all-around basketball player as a sophomore. He had some inconsistent moments as a freshman, but we expect him to be a better offensive player, defensive player and rebounder this year. Instead of listening to all the people who said nice things about him and his great play against Georgetown in the NCAA Finals, he got that behind him quickly and has worked to become a better player.

"Michael is the classic second guard in that he has size, speed and quickness to go along with the shooting and ballhandling skills required of that position. It may be necessary to use him at small forward some this year, but that won't detract from his play."

THE ACC RULES EXPERIMENT

"I believe the 30-second clock and the relatively short three-point field goal will make our game more exciting than anyone else's. I don't believe college basketball would be well served if we simply went to a clock without the three-point play to deter zones. It's the combination of the two that should make for interesting play.

"The main problem for ACC teams preparing for this year is we must also get ready for non-conference games which will be played under different rules. It's difficult to teach two different ways to play the game, but that will be necessary with our rules experiment. I do think the clock and the three-point play is the game of the future. But, I'll be in a better position to judge that after this season."

Carolina Basketball Is Something Special

Carolina basketball! The words almost explode. The last minute victories; those compromises with defeat; the electricity of anticipation. Carolina basketball has created a binding force for the people of our Old North State - not just students and alumni - but for people everywhere from Manteo to Murphy as Our Team strives for another victory, another championship.

What has become in these Dean Smith years the tradition of Carolina basketball is something that reflects properly much of what we want The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to be.

Carolina basketball is played hard, played well and played honestly. Young men who have represented Carolina on the team have gone on to the professional league, but others have become physicians, lawyers, ministers, businessmen, have entered many walks of life. They have represented their University well... as alumni, holders of degrees. They not only have played here, they received their educations here. That is the tradition of Carolina basketball—the student/athlete.

Intercollegiate athletics has an important place in today's universities. Of course, it provides a rallying point for alumni, students, faculty, staff and friends to help focus their affection for this institution. In addition, it continues to provide a means for young men and women to receive a college education. We hear too often about the abuses of athletics, about athletes not required to attend classes, about athletes who leave school at the end of their final season without degrees. We hear about the so-called hypocrisy of intercollegiate athletics. We hear little about the positive side of college sports.

The Carolina basketball program is recognized as a winning program, but it is much more. Since Coach Smith's arrival in 1962, some 121 of his players have received degrees. Other universities can cite similar experiences but how little we hear about the positive influence of intercollegiate athletics in higher education. How little we hear of the men and women in the minor sports who have played their way into a scholarship-aided education and have gone on to productive, useful lives largely because they did have some ability in sports.

At Carolina, we have kept sports in a constructive perspective. Academics come first. Academics must come first at a University. Our coaches are teachers who help mold young people in the rigors of competition and discipline, two factors in life where lessons learned on the playing fields are lessons that will be drawn upon for many years. I believe we have been successful in this down through the years.

Tradition and history are very important in Chapel Hill. We will not dwell on what was, our concerns are mainly on what will be. This University has a long reputation of excellence in teaching, research and public service. Excellence also is a tradition when Carolina teams enter the fields and arenas of competition with other universities. Our athletes carry with them that requirement of excellence. At Chapel Hill our dedication continues to be the education and nurturing of the whole person and sport is a vital part of life and society. We expect no less of our student/athletes than that they take from us what we can give... an education befitting the Carolina tradition of service to our state, our nation, our society.

These young men and women of our varsity teams play today, so that they may help all of us tomorrow.

Christopher C. Fordham III
Chancellor

Christopher C. Fordham III

Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III is the sixth chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

A Greensboro native and Carolina alumnus, Fordham first joined the Carolina faculty in 1958 and was vice chancellor for health affairs before becoming chancellor in 1980. He also is former dean of the Carolina School of Medicine, and former dean of the School of Medicine and vice president for medicine of the University of Georgia.

A member of the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences, Fordham is a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine, a distinguished service member of the Association of American Medical Colleges and a fellow of the American College of Physicians. He is past chairman of both the AAMC National Council of Deans and the Southern Regional Deans.

In 1981 he was honored with distinguished service awards from both the N.C. Hospital Association and the N.C. Academy of General Dentistry.

Fordham's actions as an administrator have had a profound impact on health care in North Carolina. While he was dean of the School of Medicine, the University initiated its statewide Area Health Education Centers program, which has become a national model as an educational approach to improving the distribution of physicians and other health care professionals.

Fordham was born Nov. 28, 1926, the son and grandson of Greensboro druggists. It was in his father's drugstore that he first became interested in medicine. He enrolled in Carolina in 1944 and graduated with a Certificate in Medicine in 1949. He earned his M.D. in 1951 from Harvard University.

Athletic Director John Swofford

John Swofford, a former Tar Heel football player, is beginning his third year as director of athletics at the University of North Carolina.

Swofford became athletic director on May 1, 1980. He was named to the position by Chancellor Christopher Fordham, replacing Bill Cobey who had resigned to pursue public office.

Swofford's first two years on the job have been most successful. In that short time Carolina has won four national collegiate team championships—one in basketball and women's soccer and two in lacrosse. The Tar Heels have finished in the top ten in the nation in both football and basketball for each of the past two years. No other school in the country has accomplished that. Carolina has either won or tied for first in the race for the Carmichael Cup, symbolic of overall athletic excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference, for the past two years.

Swofford's first two years as athletic director have been busy off the field, too. Carolina has conducted a $30,000,000 fund-raising drive to construct a student activities center which will include a 22,000-seat basketball arena; Boshamer Stadium has been expanded and dressing rooms renovated; three new holes were constructed at Finley Golf Course; the University hosted two ACC Baseball Tournaments; Carolina hosted the NCAA Golf Championships, the AIAW National Soccer Tournament and the AIAW National Softball Tournament; the academic support staff has been expanded; and a new five-year radio contract was signed with Village Companies of Chapel Hill.

In addition, Carolina's athletic department was recently named marketing organization of the year by the North Carolina chapter of the American Marketing Association. That made the Tar Heel department the first sports organization to win that award in this state.

Last spring Swofford was chosen to serve on the NCAA Football Television Committee. This committee and the Division I Basketball Committee are generally regarded as the two most important in the NCAA organization.

These accomplishments are a good indication Swofford is well aware of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics and how to cope with them. But, Chancellor Fordham knew that when he named him athletic director.

"John Swofford is a bright and energetic young administrator with an abundance of enthusiasm for Carolina athletics," says the Chancellor. "He brings imagination, talent and experience into a position that is very important to the University."

That feeling is echoed by Football Coach Dick Crum and Basketball Coach Dean Smith.

"John has everything involving athletics at an academically-oriented university in the proper perspective," says Crum.

"John is an excellent athletic director," says Smith. "He is the type of young man we need in intercollegiate athletics."

Swofford gives the credit for Carolina's recent successes to the people around him.

"We have an outstanding coaching, administrative and clerical staff, and with their help, our primary goal will be to continue the tradition of integrity and excellence that has been the trademark of Carolina athletics," he says. "Our athletic program is a part of a great university. It is a special place and we will strive to reflect her values and character.

"We will continue our commitment to a strong overall program and we will continually strive to operate on the principle that the student-athletes who are participants in our various sports are our greatest assets. We must be committed to their positive development as individuals while they are a part of our athletic program."

A native of North Wikesboro, N.C., Swofford first came to Carolina as a Morehead Scholar in 1967. He graduated in 1971 with an A.B. in psychology and industrial relations.

He played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to the Peach Bowl and Gator Bowl. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

Swofford was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973 he earned a masters in athletic administration at Ohio University. In his time there Swofford served as a graduate assistant to the assistant business manager of athletics.

From 1973 to 1976 he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities and finance at the University of Virginia. His duties in that job included directing all ticket sales, advertising and promotions. He also handled game contract settlements, stadium and coliseum operations and team travel arrangements.

He returned to Carolina in May, 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs. Among his many other responsibilities were handling fund-raising affairs, team travel and the athletic dining hall. He also coordinated sports camps.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January, 1979. In that job he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic department. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures, membership services and fund-raising.

Swofford is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Athletic Directors and is on the Board of Directors of the Ohio University Athletic Administration Program. He is a member of the Board of Directors of North Carolina National Bank in Chapel Hill and the Board of Directors of The Village Companies Foundation. He serves on the ACC television, football and basketball committees. He is also on the administrative board at University Methodist Church.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

Tar Heel Tradition

Four national championships, five national players-of-the-year, a host of All-Americas and one of the best winning percentages in the history of the game.

Those are just some of the reasons the University of North Carolina has one of the greatest traditions in college basketball. There is little wonder that basketball is a very special sport on the Carolina campus.

Since the sport began here in 1911, Carolina has posted a record of 1,261 wins against only 481 losses. Sixty-two of the school's 72 teams have had winning records.

Carolina is one of only a few schools which have won 1,000 games. In fact, Kentucky and Carolina rank one-two in all-time victories. The Tar Heels and the Wildcats also have the best won-loss percentages in history.

Carolina is one of only six schools to capture both a National Collegiate Athletic Association championship and a National Invitation Tournament title. The Tar Heels won NCAA crowns in 1957 and 1982 and swept the NIT in 1971. Carolina also was voted national champion in 1924 with a 26-0 record.

Since the NCAA Tournament was first played, Carolina has been one of the most dominant teams in the game. The Tar Heels have made nine appearances in the NCAA semi-finals. Only UCLA with 13 appearances has been there more often.

Carolina has made seven of its Final Four trips in the last 16 years. In this period of time, again only UCLA (11) has made more. The only other schools with more than one Final Four appearance in this stretch are Louisville with four, Indiana and Houston with three and Kansas, Kentucky, Marquette and Purdue with two.

The Tar Heels have been to the Final Four three times in the last six years. The only other school to make more than one appearance in that time is Louisville with two. Last year Carolina became the first school to make back-to-back Final Four trips since UCLA in 1975 and 1976.

The Tar Heels have won eight NCAA regional titles, including seven eastern championships. No one else has won more than three eastern crowns.

Atlantic Coast Conference teams have now made 15 trips to the Final Four. Carolina has accounted for over half of those with eight appearances.

Despite the University's long and storied basketball past, the sport has become even more popular here since Dean Smith became the head coach. During the last 16 years Carolina and UCLA have won more games than any other schools in the nation.

Carolina has dominated the ACC in this period, finishing first in the league's regular-season race 10 times and second on the other six occasions. This 16-year stretch of finishing first or second in the conference standings has never been equalled by any other school in any league.

The Tar Heels have played in a national post-season tournament each of the past 16 years. The 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1975, 1977, 1979, 1981 and 1982 teams won ACC Tournament championships and advanced into NCAA play. The Tar Heels won NCAA regional titles in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1977, 1981 and 1982 and went on to the Final Four. The 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 teams went to the NIT in New York. Those trips, of course, came before the NCAA Tournament was expanded to include more than one team from any conference.

Thus, no freshman class since 1963 has missed a post-season tournament at Carolina and only two, 1972 and 1973, have failed to go to the Final Four.

In the last 16 years Carolina has won 402 games and lost just 98. That's roughly an average of 25-6 a season, one of the most amazing marks in intercollegiate athletics.

The Tar Heels have finished in one of the wire services' top 10 polls 12 times in the last 16 seasons. Seven times the Tar Heels have finished the year ranked as one of the top four teams in America. Only UCLA has been there more often in this stretch.

Although the Tar Heels have gained a lot of notoriety for the four-corners offense they use late in some games, they actually rank as one of the nation's highest-scoring teams in the last 16 years. Carolina runs one of the best fast breaks in college basketball, averaging 81.8 points in this 16-year stretch.

However, the key to Carolina's success may be its changing man-to-man defenses. The Tar Heels mix their innovative and gambling scramble defense with their more conservative pressure man-to-man. In fact, Carolina's defense is so effective it actually helps the offense. Steals and easy layups have accounted for many Tar Heel points in recent years. That's one of the reasons Carolina has the best shooting percentage of any team in America in the last 16 seasons. Carolina has hit at least 52 percent of its shots from the floor for an incredible 12 consecutive years. That percentage, of course, has also been helped by the unselfishness of the Tar Heel players in selecting only the best shots.

Carolina has managed these feats against the toughest opposition in the country. The Tar Heel schedule is annually ranked one of the most difficult in the nation with only nine games per year played in Carmichael Auditorium.

Carolina's fame in basketball has even spread abroad. During the last decade Carolina twice played in the International Christmas Tournament in Madrid and also competed in a tournament in London.

Tournament play is nothing new for the Tar Heels, however. Carolina has won 48 tournament championships over the years. The Tar Heels have competed in such tournaments as the Far West Classic in Portland, the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu, the Holiday Festival in New York City, the Great Alaskan Shootout in Anchorage and the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans.

Carolina has had at least one player on each of the past five U.S. Olympic teams. Larry Brown starred on the 1964 team which won the Gold Medal in Tokyo, Charlie Scott was a member of the 1968 championship team at Mexico City and Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team in Munich.

In the 1976 Games at Montreal, Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford all played key roles in the U.S. sweep of the Gold Medal. Al Wood starred on the 1980 U.S. team which posted a winning record in a series of games against NBA players.

There have been dozens of All-Americas at Carolina. Fifteen of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren, Al Wood, James Worthy and Sam Perkins.

In the last decade UCLA and Carolina have had more consensus first and second-team All-Americas than any other schools.

When Worthy was named Co-National Player of the Year last season, he became the fifth Tar Heel to be chosen the best player in America. The others were Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in 1940 and 1941, Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957 and Ford in 1978.

The crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the sport's popularity in Chapel Hill. Every game is a sellout in Carmichael Auditorium. Students sleep at the auditorium the night before they are to pick up tickets just to be sure they get into the games. Educational Foundation members who contribute large amounts of money to the athletic program are limited to just two tickets. Faculty members have to go on waiting lists to get into games. Even the Tar Heel intrasquad games are 10,000 sellouts. That's why the University is now constructing a new 22,000-seat arena.

Most regular-season Tar Heel games are televised. Five Carolina games will be nationally-televised this year by NBC and CBS with many others being broadcast across the country on cable.

Everywhere the Tar Heels play they are a big hit. Just five years ago Carolina drew the largest college basketball crowd in Madison Square Garden history for a game with Rutgers.

It's obvious that nothing could be finer than basketball at Carolina.

Carolina Basketball International Style

When Michael Jordan was selected to a United States all-star team which played in Europe last summer, it marked another in a long line of honors for North Carolina basketball players on the international level.

Jordan was the leading scorer on the U.S. team which played a series of games against European competition. During their tour, the Americans won two of three games from the powerful Yugoslavia National Team.

However, that international success was really nothing new to Tar Heel fans. For years they have seen Carolina players star in competition all over the world.

Carolina's greatest impact on the international game has come in Olympic competition. The Tar Heels have been represented on the last five U.S. Olympic teams.

The first Tar Heel Olympian was Larry Brown, a backcourt star of the early 1960's. Brown played on the winning 1964 U.S. team in Tokyo. Charlie Scott starred on the 1968 squad which swept the Olympic title in Mexico City. Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team at Munich.

Four Tar Heel players—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford—were on the 1976 Olympic Team. All played key roles in the Americans' six-game sweep of the Summer Games.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith coached the U.S. team that year and was assisted by Bill Guthridge, his top aide at Carolina.

Playing as a team and stressing defense, the Americans routed Italy in their first game. After edging a fired-up Puerto Rican team on two clutch free throws by Ford, the U.S. then whipped Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada in the semi-finals.

After Yugoslavia had beaten the Soviet Union in the other semi-final, the Americans then defeated the Yugoslavs again for the Gold Medal.

Al Wood was one of the stars of the 1980 U.S. squad. The Americans, of course, did not compete in the Summer Games that year because of the Olympic boycott. However, the U.S. team did compile a 5-1 record against professional competition in a series of exhibition games.

While the Olympics rank at the top of Carolina's international and overseas competition, there have been plenty of other star performances.

Carolina players have been prominent in the last three Pan American Games. Mike O'Koren was co-captain of the 1979 U.S. team which won the Gold Medal in Puerto Rico. Tommy LaGarde starred on the 1975 U.S. team and Robert McAdoo played on the winning American team in 1971.

In addition to his Pan American play, O'Koren also was a starting forward on the U.S. team which took part in the Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow in 1978.

LaGarde was a member of the U.S. Continental Cup team which played games in the Soviet Union, Greece, Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe in 1975.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971.

In the spring of 1973, a Russian national team came to America, playing a U.S. all-star team. Two of the biggest stars in that series were George Karl and Bobby Jones.

Later that summer Karl became one of the first Americans ever to go to Mainland China. He was a member of a U.S. basketball team which played there and again was one of the American heroes.

In the fall of 1973 Kupchak played on the U.S. team which won the basketball championship at the World University Games in Moscow.

Carolina took its entire team to Madrid, Spain in 1971 and played in the International Christmas Tournament there. The Tar Heels swept past teams from Brazil and Spain before facing Real Madrid, the European champion, in the finals. In a game televised across Europe, the Tar Heels gave one of their finest performances to win the championship.

Carolina returned to Madrid in 1974, but was edged by the veteran Real Madrid team in the finals. The Tar Heels did pull a stunning upset, however, beating the powerful Cuban National Team on a last-second shot by Davis.

Another of Carolina's greatest efforts came in 1972. Although not actually leaving the country, the Tar Heels did fly from the mainland to win the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu. With Karl, Kupchak and Jones leading the way, Carolina defeated Louisville for the championship there. Ford and O'Koren paced the Tar Heels to another Rainbow triumph in 1977.

In August of 1979 Jimmy Black, James Worthy and Sam Perkins were chosen to play on the U.S. Junior World Cup Team in Brazil.

Tar Heel players have also made big names for themselves playing professional basketball in Europe. Doug Moe had the most success, three times being selected European Player of the Year. Other Tar Heels who have played in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor, Pete Budko, Tommy LaGarde, Chris Brust and Jeb Barlow.

Leading candidate for the starting point guard spot left vacant by the graduation of Jimmy Black... Only senior on the Tar Heel team... Has played a great deal in his first three years here... Has seen action at both backcourt positions... Regarded as a fine shooter... Once made 257 consecutive free throws in practice... However, he doesn't have to score a lot to play well... Proved that last year... Some of his best performances came in games in which he didn't score at all... Has good court savvy... Possesses outstanding quickness and excellent ballhandling skills... Has made improvement on defense in each of his previous three seasons... A hard worker in the off-season... One of the leaders in Carolina's weight and running program... Has never missed a game in his Tar Heel career, playing in 100 straight... Scored 66 points in 34 games last season for a 1.9 scoring average... Also had 40 assists... Scored a career-high 16 points in a victory over Furman... Hit seven of nine field goal attempts in that game... Played a fine all-around game in a home-court victory over Virginia... Saw 13 minutes of action that day, hitting both his field goal attempts and four of four free throws... Did not commit a turnover in that game... Hit two crucial free throws with 33 seconds to play and the Tar Heels leading, 59-58... Then sealed the victory with two more free throws with 12 seconds left and Carolina ahead, 61-58... Averaged 2.6 points as a sophomore, scoring 97 points in 37 games... Played a great game that year in an 86-64 win over Louisville... Had four steals, two assists and 10 points against the Cardinals... Also did an exceptionally good job in a victory over Georgetown in the Great Alaskan Shootout... Although he only scored two points, he played a fine game against Kansas State in the NCAA West Regional finals... Most of his playing time as a freshman came as a member of Carolina's "Blue Team"... Scored 48 points that season in 29 games for a 1.7 average... Played at Baylor Prep School in Chattanooga... Coached by Jimmy Duke.

Dean Smith
Head Basketball Coach

The head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina is Dean Smith, who has accomplished almost everything imaginable in his sport.

In 21 seasons at Carolina, Smith's teams have won 468 games and lost only 145. That's a percentage of .763, the seventh best mark in history of anyone who has coached at least 15 years on the Division I level.

The only men ahead of him are simply Clair Bee, Adolph Rupp, John Wooden, Phog Allen, George Keogan and Frank Keaney. Of that group, only Rupp and Wooden have coached since 1960.

Teams coached by Smith have won an NCAA championship, a National Invitation Tournament title and an Olympic Gold Medal. The only other coach in history ever to accomplish that was Pete Newell.

Smith's NCAA crown, of course, came last season with a 63-62 victory over Georgetown in the national finals. That marked the seventh time Carolina has reached the Final Four in the last 16 years. Only UCLA has been there more than Carolina in that 16-year stretch.

The only coach who has made more Final Four appearances than Smith is Wooden. In NCAA regional championships, Wooden is the leader with 12, followed by Smith with seven and Adolph Rupp with five. Those same three coaches have won more games in NCAA Tournament play than anyone else. Wooden has 47 NCAA victories, Rupp has 30 and Smith 25.

In the last 16 years Carolina has finished first in the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season race 10 times and has been second the other six years. No other school in any conference has ever finished first or second in its league standings for such a long period.

The Tar Heels have won nine ACC Tournament titles in this same stretch. Carolina has now won either the ACC regular-season or tournament championship 12 times in the past 16 seasons.

Virginia Coach Terry Holland touched on the way Smith's teams have dominated ACC play when discussing his program's future at the end of last season.

"Because of the league we're in, it's difficult to stay at the top every year," said Holland. "Only one team, North Carolina, has been able to do that. The rest of us have a couple of good years, then we have to fight for a couple of years and put it back together."

Despite his amazing success in the highly-competitive ACC, Smith's most famous accomplishment probably came elsewhere. In 1976 he guided the United States Basketball Team to a sweep of the Summer Olympic Games in Montreal. In only a few weeks he molded a college all-star team into a close-knit unit. Still the Americans faced the tremendous challenge of competing against international teams which had been playing together for years.

But, with Smith emphasizing a tough pressure defense and fast-breaking team play on offense, the United States regained the Gold Medal it had lost in the controversial 1972 Games.

Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in the Olympic triumph—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. In fact, Smith has had players on each of the last five Olympic teams: Larry Brown in 1964, Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972 and Al Wood in 1980.

Smith's Olympic victory ranks as another in a long line of remarkable accomplishments. His amazing successes and integrity recently resulted in him becoming one of the few active coaches ever inducted into the state of North Carolina's Sports Hall of Fame.

Smith's record in the last 16 years is 402-98, a percentage of .804. That gives his teams an average record of 25-6 in that period. Smith's teams have now won 25 games or more 10 times. The only coaches in history ever to have that many 25-win seasons were Wooden with 11 and Rupp with 10.

Carolina has now won at least 20 games for 12 consecutive years. That ties Smith with Jerry Tarkanian for the longest streak of 20-win seasons in history.

Carolina has been to a national post-season tournament for 16 straight years. The Tar Heels won the NIT in 1971.

How does Smith work all this magic?

It's a combination of things. He has tremendous rapport with his players, he is a master teacher and his style of play gets amazing results.

Former Marquette Coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a college coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong type person."

John Gerdy, a former star player at Davidson, echoed McGuire's feelings last year.

"My example of a great coach is Dean Smith and not because of his record," said Gerdy. "Instead, look at the classy way in which both he and his players handle themselves. The Tar Heel program is the classiest in college basketball.

"Smith's players speak of him with nothing but respect. He sees to it that his players graduate, and they know that he'll stand behind them during their playing days and, more importantly, afterward."

Carolina teams under Smith are known for unselfish play, great teamwork and a tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also have a disciplined attack and always rank among the national leaders in field goal percentage.

In an NCAA study of the 1970's, Carolina ranked first in the nation in field goal percentage and offensive efficiency, fifth in scoring and third in scoring margin.

That ranking of fifth in scoring is really no surprise. Although Smith is sometimes kidded about coaching "slowdowns" because of the four corners offense he uses late in some games, his teams usually rank among the scoring leaders.

Among Smith's many innovations are his run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense which was so effective with the Dudley-Bradley-led defenses of the late 1970s.

"He is the most innovative, creative coach in college basketball," said South Florida Coach Lee Rose about Smith two years ago. "Nobody is better. I've been coaching 20 years and I don't say that flippantly."

Smith's offensive and defensive schemes are constantly studied by other coaches across the country and around the world. Many college, professional and foreign coaches visit the Tar Heel campus during the off-season to get advice from Smith. His high school coaching clinic is one of the most popular in the nation.

Smith's success at Carolina has been shared by those around him. Two of his assistants, Kenny Rosemond and John Lotz, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Another former aide, Larry Brown, is head coach of the New Jersey Nets. Smith's current assistants, Bill Guthridge and Eddie Fogler, have turned down head coaching jobs at major universities to remain in Chapel Hill. Smith, himself, has been offered numerous other coaching jobs, both on the college and professional level.

That certainly should be no surprise. In the last 16 years alone, 26 of Smith's players have gone on to play professional basketball in this country and many others have played professionally in Europe. His star player last season, James Worthy, was the first player chosen in the NBA draft last spring. Two of the last five rookies-of-the-year have been Carolina graduates—Walter Davis and Phil Ford.

Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott, Robert McAdoo and Bobby Jones have won that same honor in the past. It is no coincidence that so many Tar Heel players have been successful in the NBA. Carolina players seem to make the adjustment from college to the pros quite easily. Cotton Fitzsimmons, coach of the Kansas City Kings, pointed that out after working with Ford for just a few months.

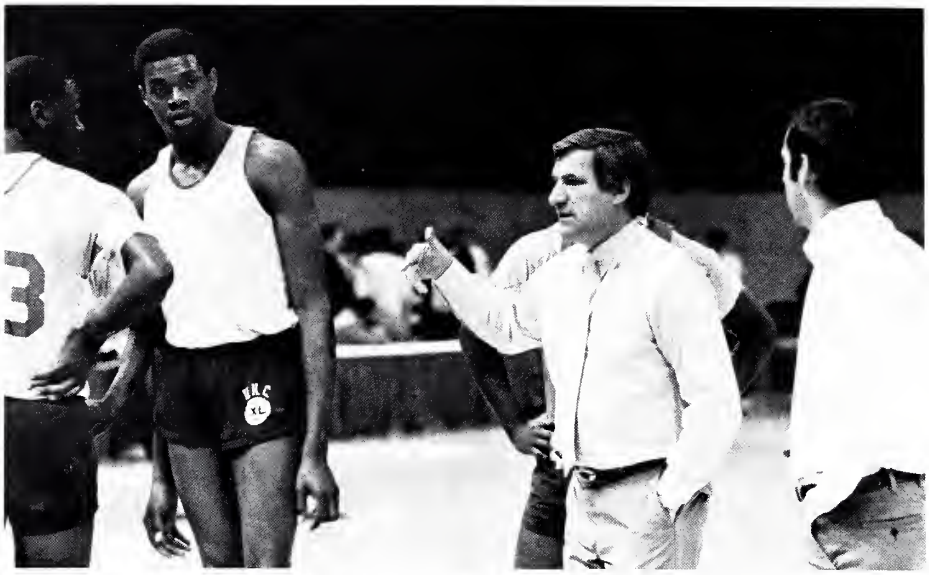
"Give me someone who has played for Dean Smith and I know they'll play hard every night," said Fitzsimmons. "These North Carolina kids take losses seriously. They have a lot of pride and that's a good trait."

Bobby Jones also gave Smith credit for his professional career in an interview with THE NEW YORK TIMES last year.

"If I had gone to any other school, I probably would not have been in pro basketball," said Jones. "I was a shy and gangly kid, not very well coordinated when I began playing basketball in junior high school. At North Carolina they gave me the tools to play in the pros and I don't want to forget it."

Of course, Smith's players have performed pretty well in college as well as in the pros. He has had more All-Americas than any other active coach. Ford was National Player of the Year four seasons ago and Worthy was named Co-Player of the Year in one poll last spring.

A native of Emporia, Kansas, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of the Jayhawk basketball teams which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.



Smith was assistant basketball coach and golf coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by Frank McGuire, then the Tar Heel coach. When McGuire left to join the professional ranks in 1961, Smith was named the head coach.

After taking Carolina to the NCAA title game in 1977, Smith was named National Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. In 1979 he was selected the country's top coach by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly. Last season he was chosen National Coach of the Year by Medalist.

Smith is a great good-will ambassador for the University. He is called upon to lecture at basketball clinics all over the world. He is the immediate past president of the NABC. His basketball camp for youngsters is so popular that he never advertises it. In fact, it is always filled by early March.

Just this year Smith was one of only two coaches named to the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education. This special committee, established by the NCAA, is seeking answers to many of the questions facing intercollegiate athletics today.

In his spare time Smith enjoys golf, tennis, music and reading books on a variety of subjects. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates, as is son Scott. He also has two young daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician.

Bill Guthridge

One of the brightest minds in college basketball belongs to Bill Guthridge, Dean Smith's chief assistant at the University of North Carolina.

Guthridge, beginning his 16th year on the Tar Heel staff, has helped guide Carolina to a post-season tournament in each of his previous 15 seasons here. In that 15-year period, Carolina has been first or second in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings each season, has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament title 11 times, won the 1971 National Invitation Tournament and won the NCAA championship last year.

Bill has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting. He works closely with Smith in all phases of the Tar Heel program.

Guthridge's reputation is so outstanding that his name is usually mentioned every time there is a major college coaching vacancy. He has turned down several head coaching jobs and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Bill is one of the top coaches in America, and that includes head coaches as well as assistants," says Smith. "His record as an assistant here and at Kansas State has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge was also a key factor in the United States' 1976 basketball triumph in the Summer Olympic Games. Bill, along with Georgetown's John Thompson, served as Smith's assistant on that coaching staff and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

In addition to his work with the varsity, Guthridge also coached the Tar Heel freshman and junior varsity teams in his first six years here. He had a 72-25 record and won the Big Four championship four times, an outstanding feat in those days.

Smith gives him much of the credit for developing the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

Guthridge has worked a great deal with both Carolina's offensive and defensive schemes. He is currently the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 percent from the field. In fact, the Tar Heels have the best shooting percentage of any team in the country over the last dozen years.

"Not only is Bill an excellent teacher, but he's a great basketball technician," says Smith. "He has a superb understanding of the game. In fact, the new rules we'll be using in ACC games this season basically came from a plan Bill drew up two seasons ago."

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who were innovators of the zone press in the 1930's.

Bill went on to play collegiately at Kansas State in the years the Wildcats reigned as Big Eight champions—1958, 1959 and 1960. Based on his leadership, academic record and athletic accomplishments, he was chosen as one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Following graduation, Guthridge coached for two years at Scott City (Kansas) High before returning to his alma mater as an assistant to Tex Winter. During his time on the KSU staff, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept two Big Eight titles and once advanced to the NCAA Final Four. Bill's first season in Chapel Hill was 1967-68.

Guthridge has thus been to the Final Four a total of eight times—six as an assistant at Carolina, once as a member of the KSU staff and once as a player.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rico summer leagues for two years. He was once named coach-of-the-year and was invited to coach the Puerto Rican Olympic team in 1968.

"Bill is highly respected by the players who have been through our program," says Smith. "He is sincere in his recruiting and I think this has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable, that it's the worst part of being a college coach," says Guthridge. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

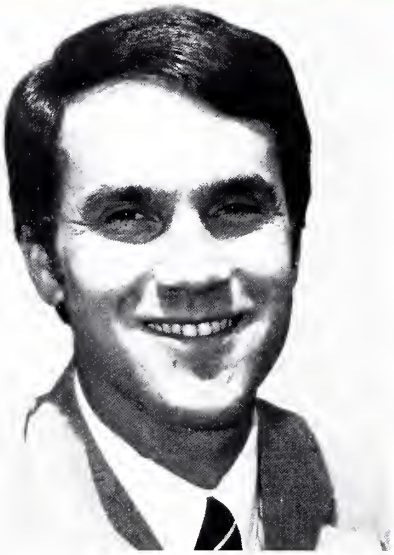
Guthridge, who got his B.S. in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina toward his PH.D.

While basketball is his game, Bill is also a close follower of other sports. When he can find some spare time, he likes to play golf.

Guthridge has an excellent sense of humor and is one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Eddie Fogler



Eddie Fogler, who went to the NCAA's Final Four twice as a player and has gone back four times as a coach, is beginning his 10th year as a Carolina assistant.

In fact, Fogler has been involved in some of the Tar Heels' greatest basketball seasons. As a player, he helped guide Carolina to two Atlantic Coast Conference championships. In his nine years as a full-time coach here, the Tar Heels have won five more ACC Tournament titles and have finished first in the league's regular-season race five times.

Fogler knows the game very well and is considered an excellent teacher. He is also a top-flight recruiter.

"Eddie has unusual sincerity in recruiting and he is an excellent recruiter because of that," says Dean Smith. "He has a genuine love for the University, and, as a result, he can present it well."

Fogler has a solid background in fundamental basketball. He learned the game as a youngster in New York City against excellent competition. In fact, he is one of the few players ever to make the all-city team twice.

Eddie then played guard on Tar Heel teams from 1967 to 1970. The 1968 and 1969 teams won ACC championships and advanced to the Final Four. In his senior season the Tar Heels played in the National Invitation Tournament.

A playmaking guard, Fogler is considered one of the best passers and finest ballhandlers in Carolina history. He still ranks as one of the Tar Heels' all-time leaders in assists.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1970, Fogler spent a year teaching and coaching at DeMatha High School in Washington, D.C. He was in charge of the DeMatha junior varsity.

He returned to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1971 as a graduate assistant. Fogler worked that season with the Carolina freshmen and also helped with scouting and recruiting. He had his first coaching experience in the Final Four that year as Carolina reached the national semifinals.

Fogler became a full-time staff member in 1973 and has made valuable contributions to the Tar Heel program. Carolina, of course, has made three trips to the Final Four in Eddie's time as a full-time assistant, winning the national title last year.

"Eddie brings a bright mind to the coaching profession," says Smith. "He really was like an assistant coach on the floor in his playing days here when he quarterbacked some of our championship teams. He's a hard worker and has great enthusiasm for the sport.

"If Bill Guthridge had taken one of the many head coaching jobs he's been offered over the years, Eddie would be more recognized in the college basketball world. He will be a great college head coach."

Actually, Fogler's reputation has grown anyway. He has already received two head coaching opportunities at major universities. However, he has elected to remain in Chapel Hill for the time being.

Fogler is one of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic staff. He enjoys all sports. Eddie is a bachelor.

Roy Williams

Beginning his fifth year on the Carolina staff is Roy Williams, one of the brightest young coaches in college basketball.

During his first four years at Carolina, Williams has coached the junior varsity, worked with the varsity and assisted in recruiting. He has done an excellent job in all of those areas. In fact, he has had opportunities to take a top assistant's job at other schools, but has turned them down to remain at Carolina.

A native of Asheville, N.C., Williams played basketball and baseball at T.C. Roberson High. He then played freshman basetball at Carolina in 1968-69. He is a 1972 Tar Heel graduate and also got his master's degree here.

Prior to returning to Chapel Hill four years ago, Williams had spent five seasons as athletic director and head basketball coach at Owen High School in Swannanoa, N.C.

"Roy is a highly organized person who has all the characteristics of a great coach," says Dean Smith. "He genuinely cares a great deal for his players. He has been instrumental in the success we've had here in recent years. I predict that, if given the opportunity, he will prove to be a great college head coach."

Williams is an avid golfer and shoots in the low 70's. Roy and his wife, Wanda, have a son, Scott, and a daughter, Kimberly.

Carolina's Greatest Players

From Cobb to Rosenbluth, from the "Blind Bomber" to the "Kangaroo Kid," from Dillon to Worthy. The list of basketball greats at the University of North Carolina is an all but endless one.

There have been scores of all-conference players, numerous All-Americas and five National Players of the Year. Many Tar Heel players have gone on to become superstars in professional basketball, as well.

All of this started back in 1911 when Carolina fielded its first team. Marvin Ritch captained that squad, but history does not tell us how great a player he was.

However, history does tell us a lot about Carolina's first great team—the 1924 national champions. The Tar Heels were 26-0 and were led by Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald.

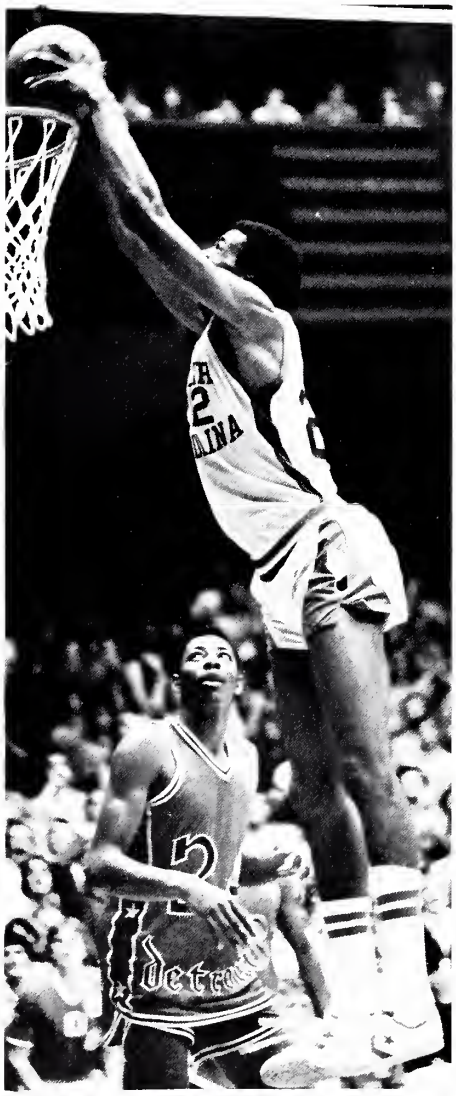
While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars. Cobb, in fact, is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was a three-time All-America and the Helms National Player of the Year in 1926. Carmichael was twice named All-America and McDonald was an all-conference performer.

Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

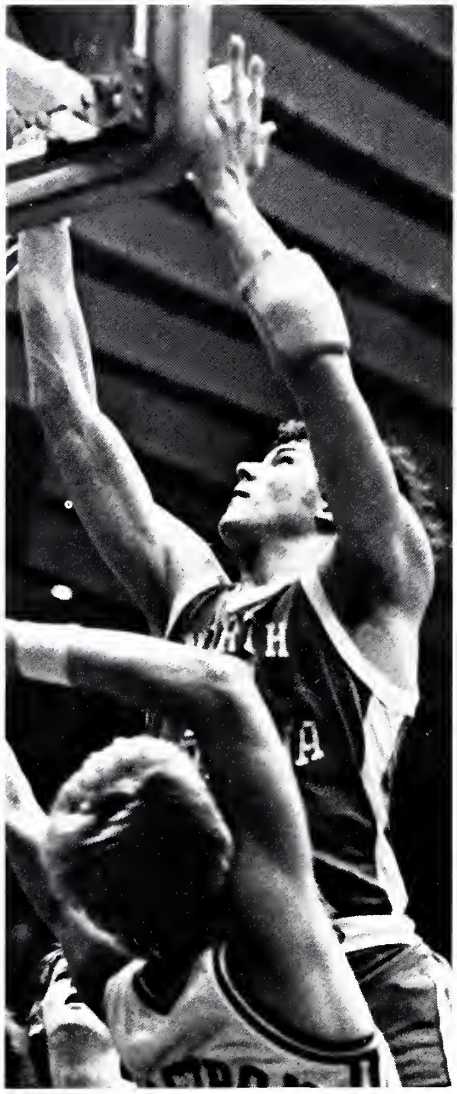
The big star of the early 1940's was George Glamack—"the Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he used with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms Player of the Year in 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A&M and big Bob Kurland in the national finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later the Tar Heels again



Dudley Bradley



Mitch Kupchak

Phil Ford

reached the national finals. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He was named National Player of the Year as Carolina went 32-0. Other starters on that unforgettable team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham.

The stars were many during the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later was an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of the decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches in the NBA.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a dimunitive guard who rates as one of Carolina's finest playmakers. Brown, now the head coach at New Jersey in the NBA, played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team which swept the Gold Medal.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made All-America in 1965. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to become a great professional star with the Philadelphia 76ers and now coaches that team.

Bob Lewis, a thin sharpshooter from Washington, D.C., followed Cunningham into the Tar Heel spotlight. He holds the Carolina single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State.

Next came Larry Miller, an All-America in 1968 when he led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA. Miller twice was named the ACC Player of the Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

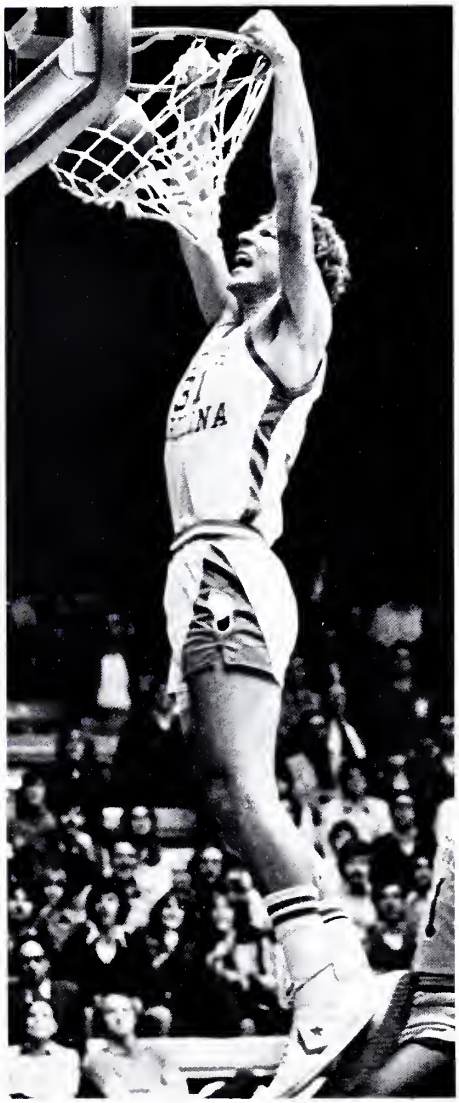
Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar were starters on Carolina teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the final four in the nation.

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was a sparkling playmaker and defender. Clark was a tough defensive player and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his senior season and was voted ACC Athlete of the Year. In 1968 he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games.

Three fine frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and an aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. They led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

Walter Davis



Mike O'Koren

Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl, a three-year starter and a highly popular player. He amazed fans with his daring and diving on the court.

One of the most complete players to play the college game was Bobby Jones. Jones had great quickness and was a superb defender. He's one of the NBA's biggest stars.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player of the Year. Mitch led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record in his senior season and played a key role in the Washington Bullets' NBA championship in 1978.

Then came Walter Davis, John Kuester and Tommy LaGarde. They payed on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Carolina history. He was the NBA Rookie of the Year five seasons ago and is a two-time all-pro. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America on the team chosen by the pro coaches.

And, of course, there was Phil Ford. He was National Player of the Year as a senior and is the all-time Carolina leader in both scoring and assists. He has been called the best guard ever to play the college game. Phil was the NBA Rookie of the Year four seasons ago.

One of the greatest defensive players ever at Carolina, or anywhere else for that matter, was Dudley Bradley. A first-round pro draft choice, Bradley was the MVP in the 1979 ACC Tournament.

The most recent superstars have been Mike O'Koren, Al Wood and James Worthy. O'Koren, the sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft, had a brilliant Tar Heel career. He and Miller are the only two Carolina players to rank among the school's top 10 in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Wood capped a sensational career by leading the Tar Heels to the 1981 NCAA championship game. He set an NCAA record with 39 points against Virginia in the national semi-finals. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into a complete player in his time in Chapel Hill. He was the first senior selected in the NBA draft following his final year.

Worthy was named Co-National Player of the Year with Ralph Sampson by First Interstate Bank (Helms) last season. He led the Tar Heels to a 32-2 record and the NCAA championship. Worthy saved perhaps the best performances of his career for the stretch drive last season, being named MVP in the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four. He had a career-high 28 points in the NCAA Finals against Georgetown. He was the first player chosen in last spring's NBA draft.

Another key player on last year's national championship team was guard Jimmy Black. He played in more winning games than any player in ACC history and finished his career second only to Ford in assists at Carolina.

The Student Activities Center

During the summer of 1980 the University of North Carolina began work on one of the most ambitious and challenging fund-raising programs in the history of intercollegiate athletics.

The challenge?

To raise some $30.5 million entirely from private sources to fund the construction of a proposed Student Activities Center.

The Center, when completed in 1984, will house a 21,800-seat basketball arena, an Olympic-size 50-meter pool, dressing facilities for multi-school events and office space for Athletic Department staff.

Construction began last August on a site located just off Manning Drive behind Hinton James Dormitory. Set in a natural ravine, the Center's exterior earth-tone color will blend into the surroundings of the woods and will be in keeping with the natural beauty of the campus.

The double-decked main arena will accommodate 7,000 more fans than any other Atlantic Coast Conference facility. In addition, the Center will provide much needed space for physical education, recreation and intramurals.

Portions of the lower arena's stands will be constructed on a telescoping platform which, when retracted, will provide enough floor space for three full-length basketball courts set side-by-side. This versatile feature will greatly enhance the University's ability to attract major cultural, political and other non-athletic events to the campus.

Concerts, lectures, theatrical performances and graduation exercises are now limited to either the 1,740-seat Memorial Hall or the 10,000-seat Carmichael Auditorium. Neither of these facilities provides adequate acoustical control, floor space, lighting or perhaps most important of all, parking.

The Student Activities Center will be located next to an existing 600-space lighted parking lot. In all, there will be more than 4,000 parking spaces within walking distance of the building.

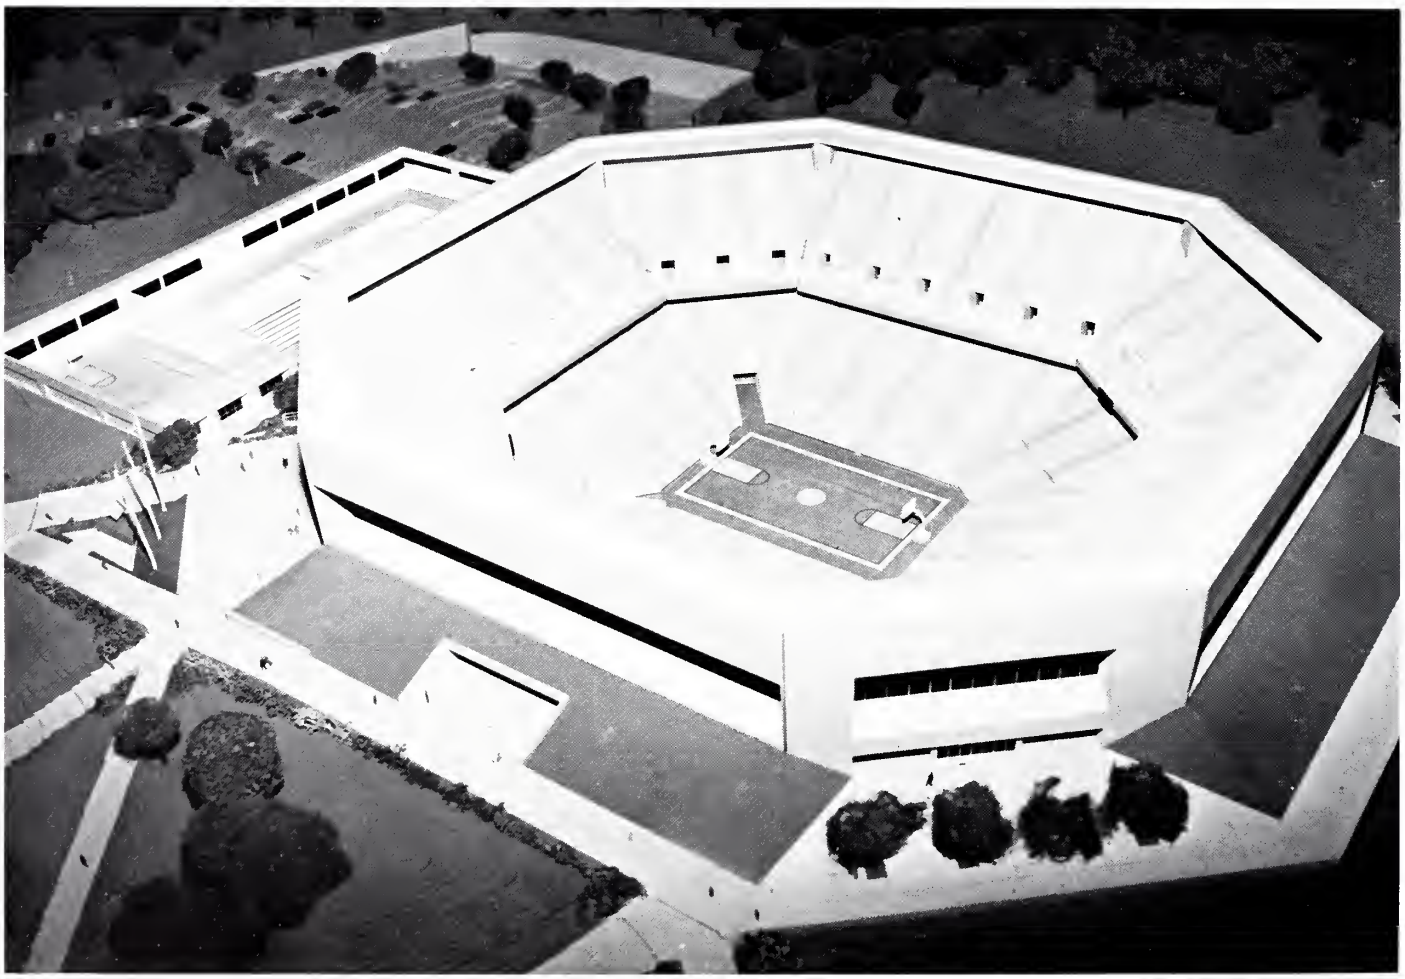
The Educational Foundation, Inc. is the organization which has directed the fund-raising efforts of the Student Activities Center Fund. For years, members of the Foundation have provided the support necessary to entirely fund the financial aid program of the Carolina Athletic Department. That program costs in excess of $1,000,000 annually.

As the summer of 1982 ended, the Student Activities Center Building Fund was rapidly approaching the $27 million mark in total pledges. Significantly, this impressive total had come from just one-quarter of the Educational Foundation's 6,000 members.

Season ticket priority in the Student Activities Center will be granted to contributors to the Building Fund and donors will receive the right to purchase seats for a guaranteed period of time. In some instances the right to purchase will be granted on a lifetime basis.

The opening of the Student Activities Center will mean more Carolina fans will get an opportunity to see the Tar Heels in action than ever in the past. The Center will seat more than twice as many people as Carmichael Auditorium does. That means more seats for alumni, students, faculty and staff.

Certainly, there are few universities in the entire country which would have dared to undertake a project of such enormously challenging proportions. To have raised over 80 percent of the needed $30.5 million in such a short time is an indication of the loyalty alumni have for this University and the great respect in which the Tar Heel basketball program is held.



Carmichael Auditorium

The home of the North Carolina Tar Heels is beautiful Carmichael Auditorium, or "Blue Heaven" as it is known by Carolina fans.

It is not exactly a heaven for visiting teams, however, as few of them win in Chapel Hill. In fact, the Tar Heel record at home stands at 140-17 since the arena opened in 1965.

Carmichael is always packed with overflow crowds of partisan, enthusiastic Tar Heel fans. Every home game is sold out before the season begins. The only way a non-student can get a ticket to Carmichael is to be a large contributor to the Educational Foundation. Even pre-season scrimmages and exhibition games are sellouts.

Carmichael is located in the tall pine trees at the heart of the Carolina campus. It is considered one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the country.

The auditorium has been the home of 10 Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship teams, nine ACC Tournament winners, seven NCAA regional champions and one NCAA champion.

Students wait in long lines for a chance to see a game in Carmichael. In fact, they often sleep outside the auditorium the night before tickets are distributed for games.

Several hundred seats were added to Carmichael after the 1975-76 season, pushing capacity to 10,000.

Most of the Carolina athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic Director John Swofford and Basketball Coach Dean Smith have their offices there. The halls are lined with sketches of Carolina's most outstanding athletes and there are five trophy cases containing awards and pictures from all sports.

The auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He left a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with Carolina.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later vice-president of the Consolidated University. He also served for a long time as the Consolidated University's acting president. He died in 1961.

The auditorium adjoins Woollen Gymnasium, long-time site of varsity competition and physical education and intramural activities.

The University

When the framers of North Carolina's first state constitution wrote in 1776 that "all useful learning" should be "duly encouraged and promoted in one or more universities," they could not have envisioned just how successful that charge would be met during the next two centuries at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Chartered in 1789, the year of George Washington's first inauguration, the University at Chapel Hill was the first state university in the nation to open its doors—in 1795—and was the only public university in the nation to award degrees to students in the 18th century.

The charter called for a central location in the state, and the place chosen was called New Hope Chapel, now Chapel Hill, where several Colonial roads converged. Legends hold that William Richardson Davie chose the location, and a massive tree, now called the Davie Poplar and still a campus landmark, helps keep the tale alive. But it is fact that Davie, the state's grand master of Masons, laid the cornerstone for Old East, the University's first building and the oldest state university building in the United States, on Oct. 12, 1793.

The University opened its doors on Jan. 15, 1795, and a month later its first student, Hinton James, arrived by foot. By March 1, there were 41 students and two professors. By 1860, only Yale University had a greater enrollment.

From that beginning, the growth, development and destinies of the state and its citizens have been inseparable from their University at Chapel Hill. The University has trained many of the state's leaders, including almost half its governors, as well as leaders in virtually all walks of life. Graduates attaining national prominence have included the 14th U.S. president, James K. Polk.

Carolina scientists made the first systematic astronomical observations in the nation (1827-31) and built the first observatory at a state university in North America (1832). In the 1820s, the University conducted the nation's first state geological survey.

Carolina was one of the few Southern universities to stay open during the War Between the States, but Reconstruction caused it to close (1870-75) for the only time in its history. Soon after re-opening, it established in 1877 the first summer school at a U.S. college or university.

South Building, which houses the administration offices of the University, is located near the center of the picturesque campus.

Programs in medicine and pharmacy followed in 1879, M.A. and Ph.D. degrees were established in 1883, and education courses were offered in 1885.

In 1897, women first were admitted to the University.

The decades following World War I were major periods of growth, and many of the University's 14 schools and more than 70 departments were established, including the schools of Social Work, Public Health, Library Science, Journalism, Business Administration, Dentistry, Nursing and graduate studies.

The Institute of Government was established in 1931 (it remains the largest and most diversified of the university-based governmental training and research organizations in the United States). The next year, Frank Porter Graham was elected the first president of the consolidated University of North Carolina, which then included Carolina, N.C. State University in Raleigh and Women's College, now the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Carolina is the largest institution in the University of North Carolina 16-campus system, which replaced the Consolidated University system in 1971. It is the largest and most comprehensive, both in the range of its programs at all levels and in the breadth of the specialized research and public service programs that it provides.

In 1949, the Morehead Planetarium was established, the first university-owned planetarium in the nation.

The last 30 years have seen the University grow, first to 10,000 students and then to more than 20,000 (including Evening College and special off-campus programs). Its 720-acre campus includes 127 permanent buildings with more than seven million square feet of space.

The University's growth has been accompanied by a continued emphasis to its commitment to excellence in education, research and public service.

Undergraduate, graduate and professional programs have received a wide range of honors. Disciplines from Latin American studies and physical therapy to recreation administration and law have been ranked as among the best in the nation. The last American Council on Education national study of graduate programs rated Carolina far more highly than any other state-supported institution in the Southeast.

The schools of Medicine, Dentistry and Nursing all recently received the most favorable accreditation reports.

The faculty of the University, 1,900 full-time and 2,150 in all, has been recognized for quality in many ways, through the selection of its members to prestigious organizations, election to national office in scholarly and professional societies and honors from peers. Their scholarly and research activities, according to the most recent University report, resulted in more than 7,000 publications, including books, journal articles, papers, reviews and abstracts.

The National Institutes of Health ranked the overall quality of research projects submitted to it by Carolina scientists for funding in 1980-81 as the seventh highest in the country (proposals made by School of Medicine faculty alone were ranked fifth), and other measures also have attested to the quality of research efforts at the University.

In 1980-81, the University attracted some 600 grants and contracts from government and private agencies totaling $64 million.

Out of that research in the past year came major findings including a new white blood cell that may have a role to play against cancer, allergies and parasites; a way to put bacteria to work manufacturing cellulose that could revolutionize the textile industry; an experimental drug that significantly reduces inflamation and pain of arthritis; and a group of compounds that seems to control the leading cause of respiratory infections among American children.

The University reaches every county in North Carolina with its educational and cultural programs. Thousands of citizens benefit from the more than 1,500 courses, institutes and seminars on campus and throughout the state. Each year about 100,000 persons visit the Morehead Planetarium, including more than 40,000 school children. The Ackland Art Museum, with some 6,000 works of art, has more than 37,000 persons each year enjoying its traveling exhibitions and permanent collection. The 307-acre N.C. Botanical Garden, with the largest labeled collection of native plants and herbs in the Southeast, is a natural classroom, laboratory and recreational area for thousands.

The N. C. Area Health Education Center Program, operated by the School of Medicine in partnership with the other Carolina health schools, has become a national model for decentralized health education since its founding in 1972. AHEC's mission is to increase the number of physicians and other health professionals in the state and to improve the public's access to health care services in all 100 counties. It has played a key role in increasing the number of primary care physicians in North Carolina to almost twice the national average.

The University's role as teacher has grown in importance with the increase in the number of students it teaches. Its 20,000 students, almost 70 percent undergraduate, 22 percent graduate and 8 percent professional, represent all 100 North Carolina counties, all 50 states, two U.S. territories and more than 60 foreign countries.

Ninety percent of the new freshmen entering Carolina were in the top 20 percent of their high school class. Undergraduate and graduate students annually receive numerous national awards, scholarships and fellowships.

At Carolina they are provided the best possible atmosphere for learning, from a library system ranked first in the Southeast to an athletic program that encompasses both excellence in varsity sports and opportunity for all in intramural sports activities and recreation facilities. The quality of the learning environment is needed to match the quality of the students themselves.

The Old Well, once the sole water supply for Old East and Old West buildings, is now a symbol of the University as it stands at the heart of the campus.

Those students leave Carolina to take key roles in every phase of public life. The state's governor, Jim Hunt, is an alumnus, as 30 of his predecessors have been. A vice president, an acting vice president and 14 cabinet members in the federal government have attended Carolina, as have four current North Carolina members of the House of Representatives and former Sen. Sam Ervin Jr.

Other alumni include Louise Fletcher, Academy Award-winning star of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"; Derick Daniels, president of Playboy Enterprises Inc.; Jeff MacNelly, Pulitzer Prize-winning editorial cartoonist and creator of the "Shoe" comic strip; and national journalists such as Vermont Royster, David Brinkley, Tom Wicker, Charles Kuralt and Roger Mudd.

The University ranks 13th nationally among state universities and land grant colleges in the number of alumni who are chief executives of the 500 largest U.S. corporations.

In all, the University's alumni number more than 160,000 as of mid-1981, with 40 percent of that total having graduated in the last 15 years. More than 56 percent live in North Carolina.

In that respect, it has more than remained faithful to its founding fathers' charge to duly encourage and promote all useful learning for the betterment of humanity.

Old East, the oldest state university building in the nation and a National Historic Landmark, still is used for one of its original purposes—a dormitory. Old East's cornerstone was laid Oct. 12, 1793, a date celebrated each year as University Day.

The Educational Foundation

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina.

As the Tar Heels' sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It currently has over 4,500 members who finance a scholarship program that costs $1,000,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 3,000 student-athletes," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president.

Williamson feels the overall bonus of being a Foundation member is helping a worthy young student obtain a college education. He says the high caliber young athlete who is awarded a scholarship is a great representative of the University.

Any donation to the Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $150 or more.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program was started in 1968 and has already surpassed the $6,000,000 mark.

The endowment program consists of $50,000 endowed scholarships, life memberships of $15,000 and $30,000, wills and bequests and a new dimension—a pooled income fund. Under the pooled income plan, a member gives a principal sum to the Foundation and then receives the interest off that during the remainder of his life.

A special room on the south wing of Kenan Fieldhouse serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic area for those who come early.

The Foundation operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Other members of the Foundation staff are Moyer Smith, John Cherry and Neal Harrell. Along with Williamson, Mary Baggett, Kaye Koenig and Jean Gunter, they have made the Foundation better able to serve its members.

"We couldn't have the type program we do without the Educational Foundation," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "We've enlarged our staff in the last two years and I think the staff additions we have made will enable us to do a better job for our members."

The man who stands at the helm of the Educational Foundation is popular Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president.

The former star Carolina tackle is one of the most active individuals on the Tar Heel sports scene. He is constantly on the go—talking with Foundation members, speaking to prospective members or avidly following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va. played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle. He was lured away to professional football and played with New York and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Williamson returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

Williamson is highly respected in his field. He has served three terms as president of the National Association of Athletic Fund-Raisers.

Ernie is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.
